

eBay partners with Time Attack and the Motorsport UK Drift Pro Championship

Organisers of the UK Time Attack Championship are delighted to confirm that global commerce leader eBay has teamed-up with the Time Attack and Motorsport UK Drift Pro Championships for the 2022 season.

Connecting millions of buyers and sellers around the world, its association with these two, high profile, national motorsport campaigns, is designed to help eBay affirm its presence in the automotive performance tuning marketplace.

In doing so, it aims to attract a wider range of product manufacturers, suppliers and associated traders by enabling them to further extend their reach towards a focussed customer environment.

Time Attack and Motorsport UK Drift Pro Championship founder and owner Andy Barnes is confident the partnership will prove beneficial for all involved:

"Many of our teams and fans buy parts from eBay, for cars that are used on both the road and the track. Whether its performance, tuning or styling, eBay plays a major role in making parts available to enthusiasts and competitors. Therefore, having eBay as a partner is a perfect fit and it's an exciting prospect for us to help endorse and activate the association between supplier and end-user."

Tony Tong - Head of Vehicle Parts & Accessories, eBay UK, also welcomes the association:

"eBay UK has served the community of car enthusiasts for years, offering thousands of vehicle parts and accessories through our powerful seller base. Sponsorship of the Time Attack and Motorsport UK Drift Pro Championships allows us to be better connected with our customers as we celebrate the start of the 2022 racing season."
